Phase II

Phase III

Project Justification:

This report describes a Phase I archeological survey conducted in September 2002 for approximately 97 acres of the (then) proposed Collington Center North Development for compliance with Section 106 of the NHPA. The Collington Center North Development plans included construction of buildings and roads, and the installation of utilities. Grading and construction would have an adverse impact upon the integrity of any cultural resources within the project area.

Project Objectives:

- Determine the nature, age, and function of each resource identified in the survey area.
- Determine the horizontal and vertical boundaries of each identified resource.
- Assess the integrity of each identified resource.

Research Potential:

See below for remaining research questions at 18PR628.

Phase III

Project Justification:

This report describes a Phase II archeological evaluation of Site 18PR628 conducted in 2002 for the (then) proposed Collington Center North Development for compliance with Section 106 of the NHPA. The site was identified by a Phase I survey that immediately preceded the Phase II work. The Collington Center North Development plans included construction of buildings and roads, and the installation of utilities. Grading and construction would have an adverse impact upon the integrity of any cultural resources within the project area.

Project Objectives:

- Determine the nature, age, and function of the archeological resource.
- Determine the horizontal and vertical boundaries of the site.
- Assess the integrity and information potential of the site.

Research Potential:

Site 18PR628 retains significant archeological research potential in several areas of interest identified in the synopsis report (and possibly in other areas as well). It possesses sufficient stratigraphic integrity and quantities of diagnostic materials to distinguish discrete assemblage or activity areas, and to place them within a temporal framework. Additional work should be conducted at the site should an opportunity present itself, or if the site is threatened by development and cannot be avoided.
